The best, the brightest exile out of Heaven. Her ways are not the ways of pleasantness, Her paths are not the lightsome paths of joy, She walks with wrongs that cannot find redress,

And dwells in mansions Time and Death destroy. She walks until her stern persecutor, Care, Has lodged on foreheads, open as the morn,

To plough his deep, besieging trenches there, The signs of struggles which the heart has borne But when the first cloud darkens in our sky, And face to face with Life, we stand alone, Silent and swift behold! she draweth nigh,

And mutely makes our sufferings her own. Though with its bitterness the heart runs o'er, No words the sweetness of her lips divide, But when the eye looks up for light once more,

She turns the cloud and shows the golden side. Unto rebellious souls, that, mad with fate, To question God's eternal justice dare,

She points above with looks that whisper, "Wait-What seems confusion here, is wisdom there." To the vain challenges of doubt we send.

No answering comfort does she minister: Her face looks ever forward to the end, And we who see it not are led by her.

She doth not chide, nor in repreachful guise, The griefs we cherish rudely thrust apart; But in the light of her immortal eyes, Revives the courage of the manly heart.

Daughter of God! who walkest with us here, Who mak'st our every tribulation thine, Such light hast thou in Earth's dim atmosphere, How must thy seat in Heaven, exalted stine.

How fair thy presence by those living streams, Where Sin and Sorrow from their troubling cease. Where on thy brow the crown of amaranth gleams And in thy hand the golden Key of Peace.

EXHAUSTING PROCESS .- The war in Europe is exhausting the resources of England, and is said to be a large cause of the commercial embarrassments there. The Liverpool Times of the 18th remarks: "War will soon prove itself to be as great an exhauster as famine. The cost of our army, for the present year, has been estimated at considerably more than the support of the Irish peasantry in 1847. The people required £8,000, the Exhibition will be formally opened for the reception of visiters, and continue open about four 000 worth of corn, which threatened to exhaust our banks. Our fleet and troops will require £8,423,099 before the close of the current fiscal year. The bullion receipts, week after week, are immense. but the bullion returns of our banks show no increase. The demand for the precious metals appears to be greater than the supply, which is infinitely larger than at any former period of our history. This proves that an endless quantity of gold does not supply a people with money, and that, in trade, despite all legislation to the contrary, it is simply dealt in as the maker and inventor, (if known,) and the name a commodity, like all articles of cemmerce."

THE estensible object of this institution is to place in the reach of individuals proper facilities for obtaining a thorough and practical mercantile education. A young man can here obtain a more cor-rect knowledge of general business matters in a few weeks than can be acquired in as many years in any one counting house.

The course of study embraces double-entry bookkeeping, and its adaptation to various departments of commerce and trade. Mercantile calculations taught according to the most approved methods .-Fractical Penmanship, combining rapidity of execu-tion with beauty of construction. Lectures upon mercantile law, upon various important mercantile subjects, beside many other points necessary for a book-keeper or business man to understand. Time necessary for a student to complete the course varies from five to eight weeks. There being no vacation, applicants can enter at any time and attend both day and evening. Examinations are held at stated periods, and diplomas awarded to those who graduate. For terms, &c., write and have a circular forwarded by mail.
